A Building Program

Life is easily compared to a building. Our inherited traits form the foundation. Our environment is the material of which the superstructure is to be built, and we are the architects.

We cannot help what has been passed on to us by our progenitors. But fortunately, like in the foundation of a building, we can, by careful management, cover up the most undesirable traits so that they will not be so conspicuously displayed to mar the beauty of our personality in the superstructure.

It has been said that we are a part of everything we contact. We breathe air and consequently the elements of it become a part of us. We drink water and the hydrogen and oxygen become a part of our system. We eat certain food and the elements of it are extracted and assimilated by the blood and built into the physical structure in order that the organism will subsist. The very nature of the physical organism demands that these elements be supplied, or it will cease to exist. But in the moral and intellectual realm we are at liberty to choose the elements that make up these phases of our life. We are the architects.

It is a proven fact that the influence of our surroundings will make its impression upon our subconscious mind. There those impressions remain indefinitely and will crop out and tend to sway our conscious mind. Now if these were unfavorable impressions it will tend to retard our progress in acquiring strength of character. Many a life has been ruined by having had the wrong impression made upon the subconscious mind when in the plastic stage, when the child did not possess enough reasoning power to discriminate between the right and the wrong.

Therefore we should begin as early as possible to arrange a complete building program. We must know just what is the most substantial material to build into the superstructure so it will withstand the onslaught of the years. The first thing the young man and the young woman should do when they first realize the responsibility of life is to begin selecting the right kind of material. This of course means the selection of the right environment.

Of course the child who is yet under the tutelage of parents and teachers is not responsible for its training. Here is where a large percentage of failures in life start. The greatest task for the young man and young woman who are working along a constructive program is the undoing of undesirable traits that have been built into their moral and intellectual structure while in their plastic stage by thoughtless parents and teachers.

It is a relentless law that if we would be successful in life we must have a well arranged program and conscientiously follow it in the minutest detail. The young man and young woman who will do this will develop a rock-ribbed character with an enviable morale. Get a mental picture of just the type of person you would like to be, and strive unceasingly to collect the material that will ultimately result in the materialization of your ideal—a beautiful superstructure, the housing of a charming personality.

ALMANAC

April 16.—Stanley and Dillard Ferguson, of Twenty-six, were Saturday night and Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Ferguson had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Everett Gibbs and son Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ferguson and daughters Irene and Katherine, of Grassy Creek, Mrs. Cordelia Fugett, and Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Short and son Manfred.

Mrs. Cordelia Fugett, who spent the winter with her nephew, Mort Music, at Pomeroyton, returned home one day last week.

Cletis Stacy was in West Liberty on business Saturday.

Mrs. Florence Ferguson and daughter Kate had as their guests Sunday afternoon Miss Gertrude Short, Drexel and Elwood Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lewis and son Elwood, and Mrs. Victoria Stacy and children Emma and Homer.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Byrd and children, Virginia and Ralph were the week end guests of Mr. Byrd's parents, Rev. and Mrs. John Byrd, of Panama.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

There has been no answer to Colonel Lindbergh's blunt statement that air-mail contractors had "the right of trial before being convicted." The basic principle of United States law is that a man is innocent until proved guilty after fair trial.—Beattyville Enterprise.

In the meantime he is entitled to all the dilatory tactics which crook lawyers can devise and to the full and complete privilege to go on plundering the government. Not all minds have comprehended the imperative necessity for "The New Deal."

SEWING CIRCLE MEETS

Cannel City, Ky.—The ladies' Sewing Circle of the Church of God at Cannel City held their regular meeting Friday, April 13, with Mrs. G. E. Nickell. The president, Mrs. W. T. Stamper, was in charge of the meeting, which was opened by singing "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Amazing Grace." The devotion was given by the hostess, reading the seventh chapter of Matthew, and Mrs. Emma Terrell offered prayer. Mrs. G. E. Nickell called the roll, which was responded to with Bible verses. After the usual business meeting, the hostess served delicious refreshments of cake, hot chocolate, and fruit. The afternoon was enjoyed by all, and we will be glad when the time comes to meet with Mrs. Nickell again.

Members present were Mrs. W. T. Stamper, Mrs. J. W. Benton, Mrs. Rissie Lykins, Mrs. J. D. Benton, Mrs. Emma Terrell, and Mrs. G. E. Nickell. Visitors were Mrs. Phil Donovan, Mrs. Lou Etta Bach, Miss Sallie Minor, and Mrs. Anna Dunigan. Next meeting will be held with Mrs. Flora Patrick on April 27.

A. DOLPHAS GIBBS

A. Dolphas Gibbs died at his home at Jeffersonville on Wednesday, April 11, aged 80 years, 6 months, and 7 days. Mr. Gibbs was born and raised in Morgan county and lived in the county until about 12 years ago, when he moved to Jeffersonville.

Mr. Gibbs was twice married, his first wife being Anne Eliza Lemaster, who died Oct. 12, 1882. In 1884 he married Matilda Barker, who is left to mourn his departure.

The following children survive: Jesse T. Gibbs, California; Wm. T. Gibbs, West Liberty; Mrs. W. M. Byrd, Forest; J. A. Gibbs and R. L. Gibbs, Middletown, Ohio; Ben C. Gibbs, Jeffersonville; Mrs. S. B. Ferguson, Middletown, Ohio; and Mrs. Chester Miller, Jeffersonville. Forty-four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Gibbs united with the Christian church known as "Old Grassy church" 62 years ago and lived a consecrated life. He was ordained by his church Aug. 18, 1887. He became elder of the Sycamore Christian church at Jeffersonville at the reorganization of that church Aug. 12, 1933.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Harlan Murphy of West Liberty and Rev. McCoy of Jeffersonville at the Christian church in Jeffersonville, and burial was in the Mt. Sterling cemetery.

The county board of education will meet in regular session on Saturday of this week. The board has some important work just ahead and some of it may come up at this meeting.

GREAR

April 16.—Stanley and Dillard Ferguson, of Twenty-six, were Saturday night and Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Ferguson had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Everett Gibbs and son Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ferguson and daughters Irene and Katherine, of Grassy Creek, Mrs. Cordelia Fugett, and Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Short and son Manfred.

Cletis Stacy was in West Liberty on business Saturday.

Mrs. Florence Ferguson and daughter Kate had as their guests Sunday afternoon Miss Gertrude Short, Drexel and Elwood Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lewis and son Elwood, and Mrs. Victoria Stacy and children Emma and Homer.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Byrd and children, Virginia and Ralph were the week end guests of Mr. Byrd's parents, Rev. and Mrs. John Byrd, of Panama.

Hovermale Tells 'em

L. T. Hovermale of the Estill Herald at Irvine has written on many subjects during his rather long career as a newspaper man, but the truest words he ever wrote are contained in his "Gumption" article in his last week's paper. "Gumption" is a more or less regular feature of the Herald and is run under the subtitle, "Which Is Plain Common Sense Without Educational Furbelows."

It has been some time since "Gumption" has appeared, but it would seem that a protest is needed to stir up the people and warn them against the proposed iniquitous sales tax that is slated to be enacted at the coming extra session. If the report of the "interim committee" is an index to what may happen then it is time for the people to be aroused. A plot is brewing to load the plain people with the expense of government and leave the big interests free. Anyone with a grain of gumption can see that. The extra session was planned in advance to insure the sales tax with all its iniquities.

To quiet the farmer a reduction was made in the real estate tax. This was done as a smoke screen to the sales tax. Mountain farms will not average in assessed value above $750. On the $750 farm the farmer is saved in taxes $1.87½ cents. But if he buys $500 worth of goods during the year he is taxed by the sales tax $15.00. That is not the big nigger in the woodpile. In central Kentucky are vast tracts of the best land in the world, estates equal to a dukedom in Europe, which are the play grounds of New York millionaires, and these immense stock farms of thousands of acres of the best land in the blue grass go practically tax free. Everywhere in the action of the last session of the legislature can be seen the hand of the special interests—the people were forgotten.

If the last session of the legislature had done its duty there would have been no need of an extra session. But the politicians deliberately maneuvered so that an extra session would be called. It was hardly possible to pass the sales tax at the regular session. Hence the legislature did not do anything save steer into a position that would appear to make the sales tax the only remedy. The Griffenhagen report stated that no new taxes would be needed if the state government was reorganized and the expenses cut, but the reorganization to cut expenses was not made. A reorganization to suit the politicians was made and the expenses will continue to mount as it goes into operation. Curtailed expenses would mean the loss of jobs to favored ones and that would never do according to the spoilsman's idea.

Let us look at what the "interim committee" dishes up for the action of the extra session. Besides the 3 cents sales tax it has still some more taxes. Clothing luxury tax, for instance. It is proposed that a tax of 10 per cent be put on clothing "which sells at a value which exceeds an amount considered at the point where an article of clothing ceases to be a necessity and becomes a luxury, using the statistics obtained through the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Kentucky," that means that every suit costing over $15.00 would carry the 10 per cent tax, and all women's wear costing more than $5.00 per article would bear the same 10 per cent tax. This committee—and that means the extra session of the legislature—would also tax your refrigerator, your radio, your piano, jewelry, your theatre tickets, would increase your gas, electric and telephone bills by putting an extra tax on them. The legislature may allow you overalls that are not taxed above the 3 per cent sales tax, and that will be about the garb you will have to wear under the sales tax.

Another sop they throw out is that 1 cent of the three cents sales tax will be used to pay off county indebtedness. When that is not understood it might fool many, but the amount that each county would receive to pay on its indebtedness would be vastly less than the extra burden of taxes you will have to pay. Think of the army of extra officers who will have to be used to check up on the sales tax books of the merchants! And all their salaries will be paid by the consumer. Many have regarded this as purely a fight of the merchants, but the merchants are not to be the big sufferers. The ultimate consumer is the goat of this as well as of other taxes. But the merchants first have the tax to pay and then pass it on to the consumer if he can. It is time that the man and woman who buy from the merchants get concerned over the attempt to add from three to ten cents to every dollar price they must pay for necessities.

The average citizen is concerned about the stability of the merchants from whom he buys. If the merchants prosper they can keep a better stock and sell for lower prices. It will be impossible for the merchants to pass the added sales tax exactly to the consumer. People do not like to buy by penny measures. The nickel, the dime, the quarter, the half dollar and the dollar are their fixed standards of money. To reach the standards of the public demand the merchant will most frequently have to add less or more than the 3 per cent to an article of goods because the exact amount would result in odd cents or fractions of cents, and hence we may expect, with no fault of the retailer, to pay really four or five per cent sales tax, and even as much as ten per cent on the lower priced articles and on goods that sell for small prices, and these are the most commonly bought.

If the people want to revolt against the threatened action of a legislature that seems unable to understand the needs of the average citizen, it is time that in each county that the citizens get together and in huge mass meetings discuss the danger and when the legislature meets to go to Frankfort en masse and demand that they do not pass the sales tax. I believe that if the people understood the real danger in the sales tax they would rise and oppose it, and I further believe that if the great majority of any legislative district should vigorously oppose the measure the representative would not dare to favor it. In many counties and districts these mass meetings are being held. The people are being enlightened and understand the injustice of the proposed tax, and I believe that the only way to prevent the enactment of this sales tax will be to get the people so aroused that the legislature will not dare to pass it.

It is extremely doubtful if any man who votes for the sales tax in the coming session of the legislature will ever go back again or be elected to any other office. I doubt if any political party which is committed to that plan can succeed in Kentucky, and by the combine of the two parties in the legislature the organizations of both parties are committed to it. The formation of a new party is in the making and if the Democrats and Republicans ignore the will of the people and enact this law, and then nominate tickets composed of men who are identified with this move a new party will sweep the state in the next year's election. Party lines will hold just so far and no farther. The fact that Kentucky gave a majority of approximately 175,000 for a Republican ticket in one presidential election and four years later gave a Democratic majority of about 185,000—a change of 360,000 votes—should warn the spoilsman that there is a point of endurance beyond what the people will bear.

SCHOOL CLOSES

The school year has been a successful one and a junior class is ready to become a senior class when school reopens in the fall.

The principal, Stanley J. Carpenter, and his wife are leaving for Johnson City, Tennessee, where they expect to spend most of the summer.

LADIES' AID MEETS

Cannel City, Ky.—The Ladies' Aid of the Cannel City Union church met with the president, Mrs. A. C. Carter, Thursday, April 5.

The meeting was opened by singing "Just When I Need Him Most" and "The Touch of His Hand on Mine." The hostess gave the devotion, reading a Bible story entitled "Precious Ointment." Mrs. W. T. Stamper led in the Lord's prayer. Mrs. D. P. Peyton and Mrs. G. W. Leslie sang "Thou Thine Sins Be As Scarlet."

After the usual business meeting, the afternoon was spent in setting up a quilt.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. I. J. Scudder of West Liberty and her mother, Mrs. Upp, of Kansas.

Refreshments of banana pudding with chocolate sauce and coffee were served by the hostess.

Members present were Mrs. W. T. Stamper, Mrs. Phil Donovan, Mrs. D. P. Peyton, Mrs. Tuos Davis, Mrs. M. R. Elam, Mrs. G. W. Leslie, Miss Sallie Minor, and Mrs. A. C. Carter.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Thos. Davis April 20.

WILD LIFE NOTES

The week's snow in February was a warning to lovers of wild life. A lot of good men took time to seed out and feed the quail during this bad spell. Thanks, boys.

This season every land owner should plant a small patch of cane and let it grow up and fall over. This provides food, shelter, and a hiding place from hawks. Some out of the way place about the size of a large store site, and plant it soon so that it will have a chance to make plenty of seed. We are assured that it will do the ground no harm.

Labe Hammond, manager of Reed's new store, offers a prize of $2.50 for the largest legally caught bass taken in Morgan county by a license holder. The contest closes October 1. He stipulates that the fish be weighed on his scales. We are in favor of this, as his scales will cause some record catches.

The Fish and Game club of this county offers three prizes to the school children of Morgan county who purchase pheasant eggs and hatch them. When the birds are 11 weeks old the one having the most birds from one setting will be given $5; the second $2.50; and the third $1.25. Anyone having bantams or light hens should try this. After the first week they about raise themselves. Information as to where to purchase the eggs and the prices will be furnished by GEO. S. OWSLEY.

Dr. R. R. Sisson has moved both his office and his living quarters into the C. M. Keyser residence next to the Commercial Bank.

MAYTOWN and NANNIE

April 16.—Mrs. Grace Murphy attended the funeral and burial of her mother, Mrs. Nancy Bishop, at Dehart, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Coral Murphy visited Sunday Mrs. Murphy's aunt, Mrs. Mort Music, at Pomeroyton.

The women of Nannie were joined by Mrs. Nora Murphy, Mrs. A. T. Henry and daughter Marjorie, and Mrs. Dona Rose, of Ezel, and all met at the home of Mrs. Rollie Wilson Tuesday and quilted a quilt and presented it to their pastor, Rev. J. F. Walter, of Nickell, at his regular appointment Saturday night at Greasy. Mrs. Addie Cox spent Friday with her sister, Mrs. Nannie B. Nickell, near Ezel.

Silver Coinage Probable

Advocates of a more liberal policy with regard to silver coinage and the use of silver as a medium of exchange seem in a fair way to have their plans bear fruit ere congress adjourns.

Since the time when the president first announced his policy to build up the purchasing power of the farmer and laborer there have been those who have insisted that the gold supply of the world was not sufficient with which to do the world's business and that silver offered the best and safest supplementary monetary metal.

The president has kept an open mind on the whole subject. It was his hope that withdrawing gold as a direct circulating medium and enhancing its price, making a given quantity stand for more dollars, would attain the goal he sought. Both he and congress have about come to the conclusion that additional action of some kind will be necessary.

Direct inflation by the use of government fiat money is not desirable unless the government would take over more direct control of the federal reserve banking system. Some there are who are urging action along this line.

But the present feeling both of the president and of congress seems to be to return to the more liberal use of silver, which is a monetary metal known and trusted by vastly more people than gold.

ALL NATURE IS KIN

When danger threatens or calamity comes, animals which are natural enemies often form strange friendships or band together for protection. A peculiar case to illustrate this well known phenomenon happened on a farm at Woodbend recently. While plowing in a field near his home D. O. Carpenter plowed up a nest of young rabbits. All but one of the rabbits were killed by the plow, and even the one remaining youngster was hurt.

Mr. Carpenter's little boy was called to the scene and was delighted with the cute little rabbit and was disappointed when his father told him to take the little rabbit and give it to a cat to feed to her little kittens. The boy somewhat reluctantly bore the tiny rabbit to the barn and placed it with the kittens. The mother cat sensed the rabbit's distress and protected and nursed it as if it were one of the kittens. The poor little rabbit however had been too badly hurt by the cruel plow, so that it died after leading a kitten's life for seven days.

NEW STORE AT MIZE

J. Wendell Nickell and L. L. Williams, of West Liberty, are opening a general store this week at the Curt Rose place at Mize.

The new firm will operate under the name of Nickell & Williams. Wendell Nickell will manage the store.

"The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER"

By ALFRED BIGGS

Safety often lies in silence.

True heroes seek no medals.

The heart often fools the head.

Ability rarely descends to tricks.

In deceiving others we deceive ourselves.

Lose your temper and you lose the argument.

Generosity often is merely a bid for popularity.

One is rarely as glad or as miserable as he thinks he is.

FARMER'S COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

The U. S. department of agriculture reports that farmers in the country as a whole are planning an increase of about 7 percent in the potato acreage. At average yields, such an increase would produce 18 percent more potatoes than were grown last year and about 6 percent above the five-year average production.

Self-feeders or hoppers are considered the best way to feed chicks. Separate hoppers should be used for grain and mash. Both should be kept before chicks from the start. Whole wheat and finely cracked corn may be fed, or corn alone will do, along with mash. Allow plenty of hopper space.

Orchards cannot produce at a profit if soil is very acid, as fertilizer effectiveness is lowered, the quantity of production is reduced, and in some cases the root system of the fruit trees is injured. From one to eight tons per acre may be required.

Refertilize the lawn as soon as the spring growth is past. Shrubs, grass, etc., are heavy users of plant food, and as grass mowings are cut usually no return of fertility is made. Manure is rich in bacteria and decaying organic matter, this fertilizer has a higher plant food content.

Homemakers should note trade marks carefully. It makes it possible to get additional products from the same company, usually of uniform quality; to make repurchases easily and quickly; and to recognize the source of unsatisfactory goods. Trade marks identify products, tho they contain no actual information as labels do.

Special care should be taken by homemakers during the summer months that window curtains do not keep out air and sunlight. Hangings that are made simply and that harmonize with the color scheme of the room and give an air of coolness and freshness should be used.

Housecleaning Helps

The worker does neater, more careful work when neatly and attractively attired in comfortable clothing.

An attitude of joy in doing a job will help one do a high standard of work. A happy frame of mind is a philosophy worth cultivating.

Cooperation of the family lightens the work. Each member of the family should feel a responsibility for picking up and caring for his belongings and should take pride in helping keep a well-ordered home.

Long-handled scrub brushes, floor polishers and dust pans permit the worker to accomplish good results with less effort and strain than when stooping to do the same tasks with short-handled tools.

Keep clean rather than make clean is a good habit to cultivate, as it is great labor saver. Dirt can be kept out of the house by keeping the walks, porches, steps and sills clean. Muddy shoes and garments should be cleaned or left outdoors. Foot scrapers at outside doors are a convenience. A storage closet for out-door wearing apparel located near the back entrance is an aid in keeping an orderly house.

Frequent and systematic removal of dirt keeps the house and furnishings in better condition, and the house is always more presentable. It is not necessary to do heavy cleaning as frequently as would otherwise be needed.

Practice letting your head save your heels if you wish to avoid extreme fatigue. Make a conscious effort to conserve energy. A little energy saved on every small task will amount to a great deal in the aggregate.

Buy good cleaning tools, keep them in good condition, and store them in a safe, convenient place. A cleaning closet may be built or developed from waste space on the back porch, at the head of cellar stairs, in the back hall or in the kitchen. It should be large enough to accommodate the cleaning equipment. Dimensions recommended for the general cleaning closet are 6 feet high, 4 feet wide and 1 foot deep. A shelf across the top and one or more at the side are convenient for the storage of cleaning reagents, brushes, twine, newspapers, gloves, etc.

Avoid methods that scatter dirt instead of removing it.

Grass and Forage Crops

The U. S. department of agriculture is urging farmers to increase their acreages of forage and pasture at the expense of cultivated crops. Wider use of forage and pasture, says the department, will help reduce the production of cash crops, lower both the output and the cost of producing meat, milk and wool, conserve soil fertility and diminish erosion.

A committee appointed by Secretary Wallace to study possibilities of a major shift in the national production schedule says:

"Everything points to the probability that the total market, domestic and foreign, will not absorb the production of our agricultural plant, if present methods of production continue. It is not good business for farmers to produce to the limit of the land's capacity when the market does not want all the product.

"Many farmers have the idea that intensive cultivation of the soil is necessarily efficient. This is not always true. It does not invariably pay to strive for the last possible bushel of grain or the last possible pound of milk. There is a law of diminishing returns to consider. Less intensive methods that reduce the volume, but also reduce the cost of production, are what the situation requires. Farmers are already moving in that direction. The trend is well marked in some regions.

"More pasture and forage will decrease the production of meat and milk, because pasture and forage land, taken as an average, produces less feed per acre than cultivated land. What it does produce is cheaper; but the volume is down.

"Experiments made by the bureau of dairy industry indicate that it would pay many dairy farmers to change their system to one in which they would keep more of their land in permanent pasture and legumes, and feed little if any grain. Cows fed a ration consisting entirely of good roughage will produce on the average about 70 percent as much as they will produce when fed a full-grain ration.

With good roughage, the dairy farmer can get production at a reduction in cost sufficient to compensate him for the drop in volume. These experiments indicate that limited grain rations or even roughage alone rations would be more profitable than full-grain rations in most regions, even through the market prices of butterfat fluctuates widely. Obviously this general principle cannot be applied uniformly in all regions.

"A back-to-grass movement would also help conserve agricultural productivity. About a quarter of the land has lost all or most of its top soil and a third more is rapidly losing it. Vegetation, particularly grass, is the best preventive.

"In the crop-reduction contracts already in farmers' hands, the Federal government has provided a substantial incentive for the shift to grass. The department recommends immediate action. Seed is available to plant 3,000,000 acres above normal to pasture. There is also enough seed in addition to plant 1,500,000 acres above normal to alfalfa and sweet clover. However, the seed supply is below what this situation requires. Farmers should save as much seed as possible this season for establishing pastures next spring.

"The U. S. department of agriculture urges farmers to get in touch with their state experiment stations and state extension services, to obtain help in determining the best type of seed to plant and the best methods of establishing pastures.

It takes cooperation to build a city.

In order to do big things, citizens must be organized to accomplish them.

Citizens who have faith in the home city must back that faith with work and dollars.

Citizens of modern cities have proved themselves aggressive and wide awake.

They are cooperating in making it a bigger and better city.

By instilling home pride in the minds of all the people.

By dwelling together in peace and harmony.

By pulling together to make honest industry and fair and square dealing on the part of all.

By good will and enthusiasm.

Enthusiasm means a common opposition to all things that hold a city backward, which in turn means a cleaner, happier, and finer city in which to live and a better city in which to do business.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

Jesus said, "A certain rich man died and was buried and in hell he lifted up his eyes being in torments." That is not like the average funeral sermon. I often wonder what would be the effect if the preacher at a funeral should say something like this. "My friends, I am sorry to say it, but from what I know about the deceased and from what I know about the Bible, I am afraid this poor fellow has gone to hell. He didn't live like a Christian and as far as I know, he never trusted Jesus Christ as his personal Savior. I wish to extend sympathy to the bereaved ones. It is an awful thing to have a loved one die and go to hell."

Did you ever drive down a country road and pass a cemetery and look at tomb stones and the mounds and stop to think that some whose bodies sleep in the cemetery possibly went to hell? Jesus said, "The road to heaven is a narrow road and not many people travel it. The way to hell is a wide road and many there be who travel this road to destruction." The Bible is explicit. There are only two places in eternity. Heaven and hell. The Christian goes to heaven and the sinner goes to hell. Heaven and hell are separated by an impassable gulf. The Bible teaches that "there is no other name given under heaven among men whereby we may be saved except the name of Jesus." The Bible teaches that "He that hath the son hath life. He that hath not the son of God hath not life." It teaches that "the wages of sin is death but that the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

There is a law of gravitation in the spiritual world just as there is a law of gravitation in the physical world. The rich man didn't go to hell just because he had money and the poor man didn't go to heaven just because he was broke. The rich man went to his place and the beggar went to his place. Heaven is a place and hell is a place, but these places are what they are because of the people who are there. A sinner wouldn't be happy in heaven. He would be out of step. He would sink off key. He couldn't stand the decency. There would be no night in which he could hide to commit sin. I speak reverently. If a drunkard went to heaven just as in this world, he would look for a bootlegger. If a gambler should step off this planet into heaven just as he is, he would try to get into a poker game. If a godless politician should step out of the underworld of an American city and go to heaven just like he is, he wouldn't be happy because he couldn't organize the angels and the redeemed to put over dirty political schemes in God's eternal city.

Yellowstone Park Found to Be Coldest, 66 Below

In January, 1888, the thermometer at Fort Keough, Miles City, Mont., registered 65 degrees below zero and set the official low mark for the United States, observes Pathfinder Magazine. For 45 years Montana held the dubious distinction of having the coldest spot in the nation. Then it seemed that Montana had passed the cold weather record to Wyoming because February 9, 1933, dawned very, very cold and the rangers at the Riverside station in Yellowstone park found that the thermometer had registered a new low—66 below. Strange to say, while the thermometer was thus registering a new low, practically all products and stocks did the same thing.

Riverside ranger station is also a station of the weather bureau so the reading was official. Montana laughed as she thought that at last she was rid of the cold record. But the learned geographers of Wyoming got busy and proved that the Riverside station is situated just over the state line on the Montana side. So Montana still holds the record for the coldest spot.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

If you have an unfinished attic, you can cut down fuel costs and hot weather discomfort by insulating it. Insulation board of wood fibre nailed over the joists minimizes the loss of heat through the roof in cold weather and, in summer, retards the passage of heat from the roof through the ceilings. Joists as a rule are set on sixteen-inch centers. Since the boards are forty-eight inches wide, they can be put on with very little sawing.

Science has discovered that light foods eaten before retiring promote restful sleep. The sleep of a group of children was improved 12 percent by substituting for their ordinary supper a light supper in which the main dish consisted of the familiar, easily digested corn flakes and milk.

How It Happened

By JUNE DALEY

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service

THEY had been married six months to the very day. Peggy wasn't sentimental about anniversaries. She didn't expect candy or flowers. She wasn't even much disappointed when Don forgot the date entirely—but to have him choose that particular evening to talk to her so dreadfully, and in front of all their friends, was really too much!

"Jeepers!" Don had said. "Haven't you even brains enough to return a lead? If you can't learn to play bridge, why not admit it and quit?"

Well, she had quit; she'd left not only the bridge party but Don himself several miles away. Peggy gave a vicious push to the accelerator of her blue roadster and swung on two wheels round the corner into Park drive.

Early the next morning, Miss Vera Stern, starting on her daily trip to the meat market for Toddlies' chop-bones, paused before the closed door of an apartment on the floor below her own. Usually at this hour a burst of singing and the clatter of dishes announced to passers-by that the "pretty little red-haired bride" was on the job. Today the apartment was disturbingly silent.

"Not that I'm curious," she was soon explaining to plump Mrs. Griggs at the corner grocery. "You know I never pry into other people's affairs—but it did seem very queer to me, very queer, indeed. I went around to the courtyard and looked up and every window was shut tight. And there was this peculiar odor. It somehow suggested a hospital to me; but it wasn't ether."

"Chloroform?"

"That's it. Yes, I'm sure that was it. Don't burglars use chloroform?"

"Yes, they do. Or sometimes people kill themselves with it. But you say they seemed quite happy?"

"Oh, very happy! Just bride and groom, you know. And she was such a pretty little thing, with lovely red hair. Oh, dear, what do you think I'd better do?"

"Do? Well, of course your janitor would have a pass-key, but I don't really believe . . . Oh, my goodness, there's the trolley coming!"

Decidedly out of breath, Mrs. Griggs sank into the seat nearest the trolley door and discovered its other occupant to be a friend of her younger sister's. They fell into casual conversation, to which the older woman, after a time, contributed the story she had just heard.

"The Park Court Apartments!" Elise exclaimed. "Yes—I know where they are. I'll be looking for details in the paper. So long."

Don Biddle looked up from his desk, annoyed by the chatter of the filing clerks inside the next partition. He half rose from his chair to ask for quiet, overheard some one say "The Park Court Apartments" and sank back to listen.

"Do go on, Elise. It's like hearing a newspaper story before it comes out."

"Only I don't know the end. Anyway this young couple had been living there for six months, and they seemed crazy about each other, she said—which doesn't sound like suicide. But all the doors and windows were shut tight and stuffed round the edges with rugs, and burglars wouldn't do that. Then there was this terrible smell of chloroform, simply overpowering, and no answer to all their pounding on the door."

"My heavens, girls!—what ails me Biddle?"

"He's been acting queer all morning and now he's dashed off without his coat or hat!"

At almost the same moment, in a downtown ten room, a plump matron suddenly exclaimed to her bosom friend: "My dear, do look at that girl. Tearing out as though the place was on fire."

"She was listening to you," remarked the even plumper friend, placidly sipping a frosted chocolate, "and when you said 'Park Court Apartments' she just jumped out of her chair."

So it happened that Don Biddle and his new and very red-headed wife fell into each other's arms at the door of a certain very much-talked-of apartment.

"Oh darling, darling—I was a brute!"

"Dearest—I was a perfect little fool. I drove out to mother's for the night, of course."

Suddenly they realized that the door of their apartment stood open and that from within there came forth a faint but decidedly anaesthetic odor and the sound of voices. In the kitchen they found Miss Stern and the janitor, intently examining a large wooden crate.

"What's in it?" demanded Miss Stern.

"Tangerines!" shouted the Biddles in chorus.

"They're spoiling on the bottom, mum," announced the janitor, after another whiff. "And I'm not saying they don't smell mighty like this here chloroform Miss Vera was a huntin' for."

"I suppose I should apologize," began Miss Stern beligerently.

"Oh, please don't," cried Peggy. "Indeed, we're most grateful to you," added Don. "Won't you please have some oranges?"

Boiling by Sound

The latest scientific discovery is that a number of chemical reactions, generally effected only by extremely high temperatures, can be produced by sounds well within the range of human hearing. Scientists have produced a sound-making instrument which concentrates sound waves, such as albumen and casein. A hen's egg, rich in these substances, is reported to appear as though soft-boiled under the noise treatment. Various vegetable oils, moreover, were "cracked" to yield acetylene gas. They are now making experiments to determine the effect of these high-pitched sounds upon milk. It is surmised that under this sonic treatment the proteins in milk may be rendered more easily digestible, especially for babies, and they are seeking evidence in this direction, and also with respect to vitamins.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

The Robbers' Cafe

The most notorious coffee house in Turkey has been closed out of respect for a tree. This coffee house existed at Moulania for the past 35 years in the huge hollow trunk of a plane tree, centuries old. The coffee brewers who exploited the tree were such ruffians that Moulania townspeople called it the "bold-up" coffee house. No one dared pass it without obeying the owners' threatening summons to buy and sip the usual 15 cents' worth of black sludge Turkish coffee. Recently the governor of Moulania ordered that the trunk of the tree be vacated and a wall built around it, so that this tree may be restored to a condition worthy of its great age.
